WEF Ranks Tunisia First in Africa

17. (U) According to the World Economic Forum's 2007 Global Competitiveness Index, Tunisia ranks 32nd overall and first among the countries of Africa and third in the Middle East. This represents a slight drop over Tunisia's 2006 ranking as the 30th most competitive economy in the world (Ref D). In the Middle East, Tunisia ranks below Kuwait (30) and Qatar (31), but is ranked much more highly than Morocco (64) and Algeria (81).

18. (SBU) Comment: While the ranking has been touted by the GOT and in the local press, many foreign and Tunisian businessmen argue that this ranking is not an accurate reflection of Tunisia's competitiveness. The rates for foreign and domestic investment (Ref A) indicate that many investors do not share the WEF's assessment.
End Comment.
